The emerging of a (the?) knowledge society and economy

Globalization (in education)

“[…] the global competitiveness and collaboration between new regional blocs which are not only economic, but also cultural and educational.”

The development of domestic, education policies that aims at enhancing nation’s global competitiveness.

Europeanization

“European integration is, at the same time, a reaction to the process of globalization, and its most advanced expression.”

M. Castells

Europeanization: what is ‘Europe’?

• Construct or concept of border(s)

• Europe transcends the idea of border(s): ideas, values, ideals, …
Europeanization: what is ‘Europe’?

Europa as a ‘space of meaning’ and an ‘imagined community’
(Lawn & Grek, 2012; Anderson, 1983)

Europeanization (in education)

- The formation of a free market on higher education (cf. the Lisbon Strategy)
- The emerging of a hybrid form of multi-level policy

Rosamond (2005)

Europeanization: what is ‘Europe’?

Europe as a ‘space of meaning’ and an ‘imagined community’

- Quest for homogeneous meaning of a “European-ness”

“[…] building communality with unavoidable respect for differences.”
J. Derrida

Lisbon Strategy

The European Union clearly stated in the Lisbon Strategy her perspective to draft (higher) education as a source to deliver the knowledge to improve the competitiveness of Europe versus well-established economies, like the United States and the emerging economies (e.g. China and India).
Europeanizaton (in education)

- The formation of a free market on higher education (cf. the Lisbon Strategy)
- The emerging of a hybrid form of multi-level policy

Rosamond (2005)

Europeanizaton (in education)

"The purpose of education, according to this scheme, would be to rear the most 'current' men possible – 'current' being used here in the sense in which it applies to the coins of the realm"

F. Nietzsche

European collaboration in higher education

- Europeanization moved past a certain tradition in which education is merely of national, domestic interest...

European collaboration in higher education

Historical overview

1970's

Historical overview

1980’s

“Dark ages of the European Union” (Keohane & Hoffme, 1991)

Solemn Declaration on the European Union (1983)

1990’s

The Treaty on European Union (1993, the Maastricht Treaty)

Maastricht Treaty

New Action Programmes: e.g. ERASMUS

“ERASMUS has turned out to be a mobilizing mobility programme”

(Teichler & Maiworm, 1997)

Historical overview

2000’s
Shift i.e.o. the Lisbon Strategy
Action Programmes: Socrates & Leonardo Da Vinci

Towards some generic characteristics
• Tension between nation states and European level: state of "between-ness"
  "It hovers between politics and diplomacy, between the international and the domestic, between states and markets and between government and governance."
  (Laffan, O’Donnell & Smith, 2000)

• Constraints to the 'what' and the 'how'
  Domains: international mobility and international collaboration
  Modus operandi: stimulating and promoting voluntary collaboration

“The conflict between efforts on the part of the European Commission to extend constantly its territory of action and of the national governments aiming to keep the European Commission out of the core of higher education eventually triggered off a European policy of reinforcing grass-root internationalisation.”
  (Teichler, 1998)
European collaboration in higher education
Towards some generic characteristics

- European Union: regulating the market and guiding its actions (cf. Rosamond)
- Influencing with its ‘money bracket’ stimulating by incentives

“He who commands resources tends largely to command everything else, or, at the very least, has his views listened to with the upmost respect”
(Neave, 1995)

The Bologna Declaration

"In the scope of history, the Bologna process is likely to rank alongside the establishment of the Euro – and higher perhaps than efforts to establish more integrated foreign and defense policies. It has become one of the most powerful symbols of European-ness."
(Scott, 2012)

The Bologna Declaration

1999
Joint Declaration of the European Ministers of Education

Political statement
"many challenges in higher education are common, and that, therefore, the solutions should be common too"

More than ‘just’ a statement
The Bologna Declaration

(1) creating comparable degrees, e.g. by diploma supplements and EQF,
(2) constructing a system, based on two (or three) cycles,
(3) unfolding a credit system (ECTS),
(4) improving mobility for students and staff,
(5) collaborating in the context of quality assurance and
(6) stimulating a European dimension for higher education.

The Bologna Declaration

(1) Comparable degrees

- Diploma supplements
- European Qualifications Framework

The Bologna Declaration

(2) Two or three cycle(system)

3 years: Bachelor’s degree
5 years: Master’s degree
8 years: Doctoral degree

The Bologna Declaration

(3) European Credit Transferring System

- Translation of (the achievement of) learning outcomes in credits
- Comparability of courses and valorisation of efforts/qualifications
The Bologna Declaration
(4) International mobility

- ERASMUS, ERASMUS+, Erasmus Mundus, ...

The Bologna Declaration
(5) Quality Assurance

- Shift towards accountability and transparency
- National systems for external quality assurance (accreditations, evaluations & audits)
- European Standards and Guidelines for Quality Assurance
  - Internal Quality Assurance
  - External Quality Assurance
  - External Quality Assurance of quality assurance agencies (e.g. EQAR)

The Bologna Declaration
(6) European Dimension

By 2010: European Higher Education Area

Where does the European Union fit in?

Bologna grew outside the European institutions, avoiding any mention of the institutions.

Bologna encompasses the discourse of the European Union.
To conclude...

- Bottom-up, emerging process of institutionalization is historic.
- Aims at realizing ‘European’ goals, serving the European Union’s wish to create a certain ‘European dimension’ (in higher education).
- Expression of a globalizing Europe, and a reaction to a globalizing society.
